How One Man's Deafness Was Cured

The chiropractic adjustment, or the thrust, was accidentally discovered by Palmer. A big buck negro who had been deaf as a post for many years was being treated for another malady. As he lay prone upon a table, Palmer, rather violently assailed his spine. A slight lateral movement of the fifth cervical vertebra (I think it was the fifth) caused the patient to jump up and slap his hands over his ears. For a time he was overcome by a peculiar sensation and appeared much frightened. His hearing had been restored with a suddenness that caused confusion—all by one accidental thrust—New York Press.

THE COLORED VOTERS

Influence They May Have on the Campaign Greatly Exaggerated

There was a lot of exaggeration at the meeting of negroes on Thursday evening to influence the action of the republican party in the approaching campaign, and though that is a fault not confined to any race, it is worth noting. The fervent orators who declared that they represented 10,000,000 of negroes overlooked the fact that there are in the United States, according to the census, only 4,359,266 males of voting age who are either negroes or the descendants of negroes.

Here is a little deduction of 57 per cent to make it the start. Fully three-fourths of these negro males of voting age live in states where they would make no difference which way they voted for presidential electors. This reduces the possible constituency for which these orators claim to speak to less than 2,000,000 at the most, supposing that they really speak the sentiments of all the negroes in possibly republican states. It would be in certain conditions a goodly number, but it is not 10,000,000.

In this state the speakers asserted that they spoke for 46,000 negroes. Again, according to the census, there are in the state only 31,425 colored males of voting age. The total colored population is not 100,000, and the actual number of votes cast by colored voters is probably not over 25,000. A good many of these, we are sorry to say, are likely to vote as they are paid to vote.

Nothing, not even the indulgence by the whites of the south of the inbred race prejudice against the negro, has done so much to retard the progress of the race toward self-support and independence as the use the republicans have made of them for political ends. At the same time, much as the republicans deserve to be abandoned by the negroes, it is impossible to see how the accession to power of the democratic party under Bryan. To aid in bringing that about would be to jump from the frying pan into a very, very hot fire.—New York Times.

THE GIVING OF BONUSES

Practice in New York Banks That Does Considerable Harm

All this talk about hard times is a conspiracy against somebody. It is more of a pretense than a reality. The aged bell-wether has been tingling his ting for some time, and all the little bleatings are bleating their bleats, imagining they will receive some of the hushes of the bell-wether's oats.

One of the big New York banks which was said to be in trouble (but which was not) presented to each of its employees on the first of January a pass book instead of the usual cash bonus. The book handed to the lowest employee showed a deposit of $50. I do not know how much the highest employee got. The president said: "Gentlemen, you are at liberty to draw out the amount of your deposit, but I think you had better leave it here and add to it." Not one cent has been drawn.

The giving of bonuses has been the ruin of many young men of liberal tastes. Of course, every small bank must follow in the footsteps of the mighty Morgan, or be counted among the down-and-outs. Morgan's bonuses were foolishly large. They came to be expected regularly. If a clerk got a salary of $5,000 a year he felt quite sure of getting a bonus of $2,500 at Christmas. The bonus at times amounted to as much as the full salary. So great was the faith in Mr. Morgan that his men were accustomed to discount the future. They deliberately speculated on their prospects, and usually won out. The $5,000 calculated on $7,500, and spent his salary long before Christmas. If an extra $2,500 came along he was that much to the good.

It would be interesting to know how many thousands of clerks in banks and brokerage offices overdiscounted their bonuses last Christmas or New Year's. These bonuses were not forthcoming. Men discovered at the last moment that they had gone into debt to the extent of their prospects; and there were no prospects. They lived up to the limit of their salaries, expecting the usual windfall and the windfall failed to arrive. They are now borrowing a dollar here and a dollar there to tide over the withdrawal of bonuses. Those who have not been dismissed expect a bonus next Christmas.—New York Press.

Studying Art.—Miss Myrtle McGregor, left Sunday morning for Los Angeles to study art painting in the college there. She has just completed a course of study in a correspondence school.

Exploring Clark Lease.—C. J. Clark, who found a vein of silvanite ore on the Cole group last week, has arranged to sink a shaft on the claim to a depth of fifty feet to ascertain the quantity of ore in the new discovery. The ore run $150 to the pound.

Wiley a Nature Fakir.—Safford at present contains quite a curiosity in the annals of natural history, according to the Hon. Wiley E. Jones. It seems that the family cat at his home was recently presented with a fine litter of kittens, which were immediately adopted by Mr. Jones' pet parrot. And it is now nip-and-tuck between mother cat and Polly to see who takes care of the kittens.—Solomonville Bulletin.

Ma's New Husband.—Are you troubled with the blues—business or household blues? If so, Managers Scott & Raynor guarantee a sure cure in their new musical farce, "Ma's New Husband," which is to be presented next Wednesday and Thursday at the Dreamland theater.

No one who sees the full grown man who attempts to pose as a bot, in the care of a tutor, and who afterwards marries the woman whose son he so cleverly represents himself to be, can suppress the laughter that the occasion evokes. And he is only one of half a score of other mirth-provoking characters that rush through the risible scenes of the piece.

The music and lyrics are fitting accompaniments to a clever book it is said, and enhance the enjoyment manifold. Some of the musical hits that will be heard are, "A Kiss," "The Great Professor," "A Quiet Little Game," "Jokes," "Would You Kiss Me," etc. Seats on sale at Globe Commercial store.

New Jersey Snake Convention

Other residents of this thriving village will have to go some if they wish to beat the snake story told by John Fitch and Hugh Allen when they got back from Boston today. Fitch and Allen are farmers with records for truthfulness as well as thirst, so the element of Jersey lightning does not enter into the yarn.

"Just as we turned the bend into Hook Mountain lane," said Fitch, "the horse took fright at a hissing sound, and for about seven seconds stood right up on his tail. We looked down the road a piece and, sure enough, there was a snake convention in session. Must have been five hundred of 'em, all sizes and shapes, with a fat headed old fellow presiding. The way they were handing out the chills it must have been an important meeting.

"We backed the horse into a lot and watched the proceedings. The snakes kept rising up in turn until each one had its say. There was one long prolonged hiss like the exhaust of an ocean liner and then the snakes formed into hoops and rolled away into the woods."—Montville (N. J.) dispatch to the New York World.

That languid, lifeless feeling that comes with spring and early summer, can be quickly changed to a feeling of buoyancy and energy by the judicious use of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. The Restorative is a genuine tonic to tired, rundown nerves, and but a few doses is needed to satisfy the user that Dr. Shoop's Restorative is actually reaching that tired spot. The indoor life of winter nearly always leads to sluggish bowels, and to sluggish circulation in general. The customary lack of exercise and outdoor air ties up the liver, stagnates the kidneys, and oftentimes weakens the heart's action. Use Dr. Shoop's Restorative a few weeks and all will be changed. A few days test will tell you that you are using the right remedy. You will easily and surely note the change from day to day. Sold by Palace and Globe Pharmacies.
